This document represents a synopsis of the Rules and Regulations about Share Accounts. Please refer to the official rules found in the 'SHARE ACCOUNT AGREEMENT', 'FUNDS AVAILABILITY' and the 'TRUTH-IN-SAVINGS DISCLOSURE'.

*GenFed may pay an overdraft item, at our sole discretion, and charge this fee in lieu of the NSF fee, potentially saving you additional charges by other parties. Overdraft is defined as an item that decreases your available balance (available is defined as actual balance less any holds) below zero. This fee is imposed for overdrafts created by checks, ACH, or by other electronic means, as applicable. You can also opt in for this coverage for ATM withdrawals and Debit Card transactions. All advances resulting in an overdrawn balance must be repaid within a 30 day period. Before using the overdraft privilege pay program GenFed will access available funds in the regular share/savings as well as personal overdraft lines of credit, as applicable, to cover the overdraft. This will cause your account to be overdrawn with a negative available or actual balance. You may opt out of this program by notifying GenFed. Excessive NSF/Overdraft fees can be costly.
